

Field Archaeologists

Alpine is accepting applications for Field Archaeologists. These are temporary, full-time survey and excavation positions in the western United States.

Wages are based on experience, but range from $20 to $22 per hour. A $59 per diem (no receipts required) and housing (single occupancy) provided during field sessions. Company transportation to and from project areas is provided.

Responsibilities:

The successful candidate will conduct cultural surveys and/or excavations under the supervision of our Staff Archaeologist, with direction from the project's Principal Investigator. This position requires timely and comprehensive completion of survey, testing, and data recovery projects.

Qualifications:

At a minimum, candidates for this position should have completed college-level course work in archaeology, anthropology, or a related field, although a B.A./B.S. degree in anthropology or closely related field is preferred. A minimum of one month of survey or excavation field experience and/or the successful completion of an accredited field school is required. Experience in the western U.S. is highly desirable. The ability to use a GPS unit, and/or possessing a basic understanding of lithic and ceramics is a plus.

Archaeological fieldwork will constitute the job duties, requiring the ability to regularly perform work of a physical nature. This includes but is not limited to the ability to walk up to 8 miles a day in rugged terrain. The ability to stoop, sit for long periods, carry heavy objects, and use hand tools for digging and scraping may also be required.

How to Apply:

Applications will be accepted until the positions have been filled. For consideration, please submit your curriculum vitae or resume outlining education, previous field experience, and all relevant qualifications via our webpage at:
