

ALPINE ARCHAEOLOGICAL CONSULTANTS, INC.

PRINCIPAL INVESTIGATOR

Alpine Archaeological Consultants, Inc. (Alpine) is growing and looking to add a Principal Investigator to our team. Will that person be you? This is a management-level position and requires permittable experience in CRM within our Mountain West, Great Plains, and Southwest regions. Learn more about us here: www.alpinearchaeology.com

Alpine is a full-service, people-focused, woman-owned cultural resources consulting firm headquartered in Montrose, Colorado. Learn more about what is so special about our area here: www.visitmontrose.com

Hiring preference may be given to an individual willing to relocate near our Montrose headquarters; however, applicants will also be considered who are within our region and willing to travel to Montrose for team collaboration.

Your Responsibilities Will Include

- Acting as primary project contact for federal, state, and municipal agencies, and private clients.
- Collaborating with the management team during scope, proposal, and budget development.
- Ensuring that all fieldwork, analysis, and reporting meets Alpine's high-quality standards.
- Mentoring staff to develop their skills in accomplishing project requirements.
- Remaining current with relevant agency protocols and permit stipulations.
- Tracking the progress of numerous projects through the entire compliance process.
- Working collaboratively toward project success and leadership in staff development.

Minimum Qualifications

- Master's degree in anthropology or archaeology plus five (5) years of supervisory experience in archaeological fieldwork, analysis, and report preparation.
- Demonstrated ability to succeed in a fast-paced consulting environment, handling multiple projects, assignments, research, survey, excavation, analysis, and technical writing.
- Experience conducting historical research using primary source materials.
- A thorough understanding of the cultural resource regulations and agency permitting requirements in one or more of our service states.
- Strong organizational, communication, writing, and computer skills are integral to this position.
- Ability to conduct occasional fieldwork that may involve overnight stays, hiking in inclement weather, rough terrain, and/or high elevations.
- Eligible to work in the U.S. without sponsorship.

Salary and Benefit Package

Salary range: $90,000 - $110,000/year, dependent on qualifications

Staff benefits include:

- 11 paid holidays, 13 paid vacation days, and 10 paid sick days during the first year; Alpine offers a structured compensation plan to offset longer work weeks for exempt employees.
- Health and vision insurance available upon hire; 100% employer-paid employee health insurance premium after one (1) year of employment; dependent coverage options are also available.
- 401(k) retirement plan after one year employment that includes a 4% employer match.
- As a corporate value, Alpine contributes additional profit-sharing amounts in a year-end payroll bonus and in the employee's 401(k).

Position is open until filled. Please apply here: www.alpinearchaeology.com/careers/

Alpine Archaeological Consultants, Inc. is an equal opportunity employer.